HOUSE TAKES PRESIDENT'S CHAIR AT FORMAL MEETING OF THE "BIG FOUR" THIS AFTERNOON

KING OF BELGIUM PRESENT TO PUT UP CLAIM OF HIS COUNTRY FOR REPARATION OF HUN WRONGS

PEACE WITH HUNS FIRST URGED

By Carl D. Groat

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, April 4—The "big four" met this afternoon with Col. House representing President Wilson, who is suffering from a severe cold necessitating his temporary absence from the conference, and King Albert of Belgium, who conferred yesterday with President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau and President Poincaire who were invited to the meeting.

It was expected that Belgium's claim to participate in the matter of reparation would be given official consideration and that Belgium's territorial questions would be considered simultaneously with the work of Germany's western and eastern boundaries.

Some of President Wilson's advisors are urging him to return to the original plan for making peace with Germany firstand signing the treaties with Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey later. He is being told that this may facilitate the peace work greatly. While the American group has held that a joint peace settlement would delay the final result they suggested today that peace with Germany be settled at once in an effort to restore normal conditions in Europe. How Wilson feels regarding the suggestion is not known.

FILIPINOS ASK INDEPENDENCE OF UNITED STATES: MISSION CALLS

(By United Press)

Quezon speaking for the mission said "the granting of independence to our country will prove to the world that America is a liberating rather than a conquering nation."

"The time for the Filipinos' independence has essentially come" Secretary of War Baker told the Philippine mission here today.

This action followed the decision of the Dauphin county court in the telephone injunction case against the Bell Telephone company in which the increase in rates ordered by Postmaster General Burleson was declared in violation of the Pennsylvania Public Service laws.

MEANEST CHEATER WATERED HIS COAL

We were informed by a reputable citizen this morning that the "cheapest crook" imaginable lives in Clearfield and that he is selling or hauling custom coal. This fellow who resembles a man somewhat—in outward appearance only—was seen yesterday morning at the public watering trough at the Second street bridge taking water from the horse trough by the bucket full and dousing onto the coal in the wagon preparatory to having the same weighed at Fullington's scales just off Bridge street.

No doubt the soaked coal was intended for some poor widow woman at that.

The sonofagun had a two and one half gallon bucket and loaded up about 75 cents worth of water before sneaking away from the trough.

Talk about the Bolsheviki. Wouldn't that grab you? What?

We'll bet a cent watering troughs will be mighty scarce where that fellow goes when he quits hauling coal here and goes to wheeling out ashes there.

JOHN MARTIN WESLEY

John Martin Wesley, a well known and highly respected resident of Kylertown, died at his home in that place on Saturday, March 29, 1919, the result of Bright's disease, with which he had been ailing for some time.

The deceased, whose age was 64 years, was a native of Bellwood. When a young man he came with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Wesley, now deceased, to this vicinity, and along with his father worked as an engineer at the old Weiser & Bender sawmill near Graham station, where the parents resided. Late he was an engineer for the late D. W. Holt at the old Lock Lohmond sawmill, and in recent years has been an engineer at the mines near Allport, and making his home at Kylertown. He was a member of the church, and also of the lodges of Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias. A courteous gentleman, and an industrious and upright citizen, his death will be mourned by a large number of friends.

Besides his wife, who was formerly Miss Gertrude Albert, born and raised in this vicinity, he leaves two sons and two daughters, viz: David, of Clearfield; Ed. of Barnesboro; Carrie, wife of Harry Reece, of Kylertown, and Mrs. Gertrude Hooven, of Altoona. Four brothers and one sister also survive, viz: L. Wesley, of Johnsonburg; Frank, of Harrisburg; Jesse and Orin, of Tyrone, and Mrs. John Lafey, of Hawk Run.

His funeral took place on Wednesday, April 2, with interment in the Kylertown cemetery.

WAS INSURED IN ARCANUM

HELPERS NEEDED BADLY AT RED CROSS ROOMS

The Red Cross campaign for used clothing to be sent to the deserving poor of Europe is meeting with a hearty response at the hands of citizens of this community and in every district within the jurisdiction of the Clearfield chapter. Tons of it has begun to arrive at Red Cross headquarters and they have asked The Progress to announce that helpers are needed to sort and bundle the clothing. This is not a case where you can take a vacation before starting to work as the clothing is already at the rooms waiting to be attended to and the helpers are wanted at SEVEN O'CLOCK THIS VERY EVENING. Helpers are also needed for tomorrow. Be on the job at seven o'clock tonight and lend a hand to the force who are already working on this laudable undertaking.

AMERICA'S IMMORTALS

JACKSON D. BURKE,
Sergeant-Major, 1st Battalion, 28th Infantry.

Sergt.-Maj. Burke was decorated for the display of exceptional courage, bravery and loyalty to duty at Cantigny, France, May 28 to 29. At one period in the fight, it was necessary to send a message of great importance to the regimental commander. It was considered impossible for a runner to reach regimental headquarters, because of the heavy fire of the enemy line. He undertook the mission, succeeded in carrying the message and by crawling several hundred yards through machine gun fire he successfully executed his mission. Sergt.-Maj. Burke's home is at Madisonville, Ky.

CANNING THE CAN'T IDEA

Vicory Liberty Loan workers all over the nation are busily engaged in killing the "can't" idea which is permeating the minds of so many people at this time. Judging from the activity around Loan headquarters they are going to accomplish all that they set out to do.

The Victory Liberty Loan office for the district composed of Clearfield county and Philipsburg has been open this week and is already one of the busiest places in Clearfield if not the whole county. A tremendous organization is being formed which will make a thorough campaign in every nook and corner of the district. To enumerate all the activities of the different officials and chairmen and committeemen would require a whole page in itself. These activities will be published more fully from now on. Up to this time it has been largely a matter of organization and the real work will begin next week. Watch this column for news of the big loan campaign.

Every minister and priest in the district has been supplied with a copy of a bulletin to be read in the churches on Sunday. It is hoped that all ministers will co-operate and that churchgoers will carefully heed the message.

"MICKEY" GLADDENS HEARTS OF MOVIE THEATRE PATRONS

Packed houses greeted the two showings of "Mickey" the world famous photoplay at The Driggs theatre last evening. "Mickey" proved to be one of the rip-roaringest, hair-raising film showing ever staged in these parts.

Pretty little Mabel Normandy as "Mickey" is sure some cutie. H. C Witwer, the brilliant and witty author of the play certainly mapped out some thrilling situations, but the vivacious and versatile "Mickey" never batted an eye and went through the scale from ludicrity to pathos and from tomboy westerner to the demure city debutante with a sangfroid and abandon that fairly took ones breath away. You can talk till you are out of breath trying to describe that horse raced and slide for life off the roof, with the other half hundred hairbreadth escapes of the pretty little heroine but you can't even begin to do play or star justice "Mickey" is in a class by itself and herself and must be seen by all who love thrill and adventure with a happy finale to be really appreciated.

A. E. F. HAS BIGGEST UNIVERSITY IN ALL THE WORLD

(By United Press.)

Beaume, March 20. (By Mail.)—What's expected to be the largest educational institution in the world, or at least to have the largest student body, has opened here and the first rush of the anticipated ten thousand students has begun. The buildings are practically all ready. The Army Educational Commission, which will control the school, operating it as a military post, is settled in its headquarters. The commanding officer, Col. Ira L. Reeves, former professor of military science at Purdue University, has been at Beaume six weeks supervising preparations. Dr. John Erskine, professor of English at Columbia, is educational director or president of the faculty.

In the faculty are President Kenyon L. Butterfield of Massachusetts Agricultural College, directing the department of agriculture; Dr. Louis L. Reber, dean of the University of Wisconsin, directing the engineering department and Dr. F. E. Spaulding, superintendent of schools at Cleveland, in an advisory capacity.

There are fourteen colleges. When in full operation the university, together with the agricultural college nine miles distant, will accommodate nearly 40,000 men, housed in one thousand buildings. The buildings are semi-permanent structures of brick and concrete, 600 of them dormitories and mess halls and the remainder class rooms laboratories lecture rooms, recreation and entertainment halls. Athletic fields are being built.

A building to accommodate nearly a half million books, furnished by the American Library Association, will be the library. It will surpass many a library in American universities and is intended to cover every subject.

For enrollment, high school or equivalent education is required. The university is opened to all members of the A. E. F., officers and privates alike. There is no cost for tuition, text books, transportation, or housing and students will draw their regular pay while in school. If a student's organization is ordered home while he is at school he may remain in school if he desires, so long as the A. E. F. continues to operate.

PLAN HIGHWAY IN HONOR OF PERSHING

By United Press

Lincoln, Neb., April 3—"Pershing highway" a national road in honor of General J. J. Pershing, is being organized by the Lincoln Commercial club. Present plans contemplate making the road start at New York, touching Princeton, N. J., Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Indianapolis en route west. This would include many historic points connected with the civil war and would take in Springfield, Ohio., Lincoln's birthplace.

A permanent organization of the project has been completed here with Governor S. R. McKelvie, Nebraska, as honorary chairman, and Chancellor Samuel Avery, of the University of Nebraska, temporary president. Governor McKelvie has announced his intention of inviting governors of the various states through which the highways will pass to sent representatives to Lincoln in the near future to effect a national organization.

As planned, the trans-continental road will touch the state capitals of California, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Nebraska, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. The Pershing route would follow the Lincoln Highway in part, branching off at points to include scenes of the general's life.

BOLD HOLD UP AT TUTTLE CREEK

Tuttle Creek, April 4.—Policeman Robert M. Hamilton aged 26, of Tuttle Creek, was shot to death and an unidentified bandit is believed to have been wounded in a revolver battle which followed the hold up by automobile bandits of the Mirror Restaurant at Tuttle Creek early today. Peter Sampas aged 29 a waiter in the restaurant after over powering one of the bandits and disarming him was probably fatally shot.

FISHING SEASON PROMISES TO BE BEST IN YEARS

Normal Temperatures And Lack Of Snow Taken As Sign That Trout Will Be Plentiful

MANY DIGGING BAIT ALREADY

A question that is often heard on the streets at this time is 'What is the outlook for the trout fishing season this year?" Many of the local anglers are asking this question, and the answers naturally appear to differ. It is a difficult question to answer in several respects owing to existing conditions. The weather is the one of the largest factors, and presence of plenty of fish in the streams is another. Should the weather prove favorable during the first few days of the season, which opens Tuesday, April 15, and the streams are not too high and do not contain snow water there is but little doubt but that the anglers will be successful on the various streams in this locality.

The mild weather of the past winter helped materially in saving the lives of many trout which would have died had the streams been ice-bound. The trout streams were open practically all winter, and this fact will go far toward making a successful season this year, inasmuch as there should be an abundance of trout in the streams.

However, just what might occur between now and the opening of the season is not known. Take last year for instance. Most sportsmen predicted a good season for the catching of the speckled beauties and in fact everything pointed that way. But the opening day proved a sore disappointment to many who tried their luck owing to the heavy fall of snow a few days before. Some anglers trudged thru the snow all day and were rewarded with hardly enough to "make a mess" of.

Then again, the presence of snow water in the streams means poor sport. The fish are very sluggish and there is but little sport, as the best it appears to be is termer "sucker fishing." Whereas, with the streams in the proper condition and warm weather, the speckled beauties are full of life but ready and put up a game fight. Therefore, it is difficult to conjecture just what is in store for the lovers of the rod. Even with a good opening, it does not necessarily mean a good season, for throughout last summer, the fishing was exceedingly poor, owing to cool weather.

Nevertheless, no matter what the first two weeks of the season may be, it is safe to assert that with the arrival of warm weather, the sport should be the best that has been experienced in this community for many years. With plenty of fish in the streams and good weather, it can hardly be otherwise.

The usual custom of nearl all trout anglers is to use worms, minnows, lawyers, etc, to tempt the wily fish during the first few days of the season, and already some of the local fishermen who expect to put in the first day of the season, can be seen digging up their back yards for a bountiful supply of wrigglers. They are killing two birds with one stone—getting worms and digging up the garden for their spring planting. However, there are those who, should the air be warm, will use artificial flies to tempt the fish, even on the open day. This sounds incredulous, because there is such a small amount of insect life at that time, but nevertheless it is a proven fact. A fly that will usually do the trick to a nicety is one containing some bright red feathers, provided that there is no snow water in the streams.

BUSINESS HIT AGAIN

For the ordinary business that the people are transacting these days they are being taxed very heavily and the cost is slowly mounting, epecially wherever the government has a say in the matter. The public is paying more for freight and passenger service; more for wheat; more for telephone and telegraph charges. Meanwhile the government property, such as ships which were built a great expense are being sold for less than cost. The public will pay the difference—or has already paid it.

A crowning imposition upon the public has just been perpetrated by Political master Burleson in regard to telegraphic tolls under the guise of a war move, months after the armistice has been signed. The Postmaster General a few months ago took over the telephone and telegraph lines. Wages of the two lines have been advanced about 15 per cent. while the rates were boosted about 10 per cent. on an average. And the peculiar part of the rate boosting is the fact that it was made over the protest of one of the big telephone companies. Against their will the Postmaster General is compelling the companies to charge more for their service. C. H. Mackey, of the Postal company claims that if Burleson will return the lines to the company, it will be able to make good earnings at the old rate. This would seem to be confirmed by the statement that in the last six months the profits of the company was about $1,800,000, good evidence that an increase was not necessary in the rates if the business were efficiently handled. The increase made on April 1 means that the public will have to pay approximately $16,000,000 more for sending telegrams. About the only reason visible for the increase is the fact that it is desired to create jobs for political workers. (DuBois Courier)

MRS. R. M. TEST DIES

Mrs. Jane Lloyd Test, relict of the late Roland M. Test, of Philipsburg, died at the home of her daughter Mrs. F. B. Lee, on Fourth street, about 7 o'clock Thursday evening, April 3d. in the 75th year of her age. She had been suffering with a heavy cold for a few days and on Tuesday evening pneumonia developerd and on account of her advanced years her case was considered hopeless from the onset of the disease.

The deceased was born in Birmingham, Pa., in 1849, and lived in Philipsburg for many years. She was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian church and a sincere christian woman who was known and highly respected by a wide circle of friends. Her husband preceded her to the better world just six years ago yesterday. Since that time Mrs. Test had been making her home with her daughters.

She leaves to mourn the loss of a loving, devoted mother three daughters, viz: Mrs. F. B. Lee, Clearfield; Mrs. Lowman, wife of Dr. J. B. Lowman, of Johnstown and Mrs. Helen Hauffman, of Waterloo, Iowa.

GREEN FANCY

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Thomas K. Barnes, wealthy New Yorker, on a walking trip through New England, is caught in a storm miles from his destination. At a crossroads point he meets a girl in the same plight. While they discuss the situation an automobile, sent to meet the girl, arrives and Barnes is given a lift to Hart's tavern, while the girl is taken on to her destination, which she tells Barnes is a place called Green Fancy.

CHAPTER II—At the tavern Barnes falls in with a stranded troupe of "barnstorming" actors, headed by Lyndon Rushcroft, and becomes interested in them.

CHAPTER III—As the storm grows, Barnes finds himself worrying over the safety of the girl, traveling over the mountain roads at what he considers dangerous speed. He learns that Green Fancy is something of a house of mystery. Two mounted men leave the tavern in a manner which arouses Barnes' curiosity.

CHAPTER IV—He meets "Miss Thackeray," leading lady of the stranded theatrical troupe, who is acting as chambermaid. That night he is aroused by the bringing of a dying man to the tavern, one of the two who had ridden away a short time before. They tell of finding the dead body of the other man. Both had been shot.

CHAPTER V—The wounded man, registered at the tavern as Andrew Paul, dies, and Barnes is informed he must not leave until after the inquest. O'Dowd and De Soto, guests at Green Fancy, visit the tavern, apparently much mystified over the affair.

CHAPTER VI.

Charity Begins Far From Home, and a Stroll in the Wildwood Follows.

Mr. Rushcroft was furious when he arose at eleven o'clock on the morning after the double murder, having slept like a top through all of the commotion. He boomed all over the place, vocal castigations falling right and left on the guilty and the innocent without distinction.

"I don't see how you managed to sleep through it," Barnes broke in. "You must have an unusually clear conscience, Mr. Rushcroft."

"I haven't any conscience at all, sir," roared the star. "I had an unusually full stomach, that's what was the matter with me. I take oath now, sir, never to eat again as long as I live. A man who cannot govern his beastly appetite ought to defy it, if nothing else."

"I gather from that remark that you omitted breakfast this morning."

"Breakfast, sir? In God's name, I implore you not to refer to anything so disgusting as stewed prunes and bacon at a time like this. My mind is—"

"How about luncheon? Will you join me at twelve-thirty?"

"That's quite another matter," said Mr. Rushcroft readily. "Luncheon is an esthetic tribute to the physical intelligence of man, if you know what I mean. I shall be delighted to join you. "Twelve-thirty, did you say?"

"It would give me great pleasure if your daughter would also grace the festal board. I think it is too bad that she has to go about in the gown she wears, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes. "She's much too splendid for that. I have a proposition I'd like to make to you later on. I cannot make it, however, without consulting Miss Thackeray's feelings."

"My dear fellow!" beamed Rushcroft, seizing the other's hand. "One frequently reads in books about it coming like this, at first sight, but, damme, I never dreamed that it ever really happened. Count on me! She ought to leave the stage, the dear child. No more fitted to it than an Easter lily. Her place is in the home, the—"

"Good Lord, I am not thinking of—" And Barnes, aghast, stopped before blurting out the words that leaped to his lips. "I mean to say this is a proposition that may also affect your excellent companions, Bacon and Dillingford, as well as yourself."

At twelve-thirty sharp Barnes came down from his room freshly shaved and brushed, to find not only Mr. Rushcroft and Miss Thackeray awaiting him in the office, but the Messrs. Dillingford and Bacon as well.

"I took the liberty, old fellow," said Rushcroft, addressing Barnes, "of asking my excellent co-workers to join us in our repast."

"Delighted to have you with us, gentlemen," said Barnes affably.

The sole topic of conversation for the first half hour was the mysterious slaying of their fellow lodgers. Mr. Rushcroft complained bitterly of the outrageous, high-handed action of the coroner and sheriff in imposing upon him and his company the same restrictions that had been applied to Barnes. They were not to leave the county until the authorities gave the word. One would have thought, to hear the star's indignant lamentations, that he and his party were in a position to depart when they pleased. It would have been difficult to imagine that he was not actually rolling in money instead of being absolutely penniless.

Barnes had been immersed in his own thoughts for some time. A slight frown, as of reflection, darkened his eyes. Suddenly—perhaps impolitely—he interrupted Mr. Rushcroft's flow of eloquence.

"Have you any objection, Mr. Rushcroft, to a more or less personal question concerning your own private—er—misfortunes?" he asked, leaning forward.

For a moment one could have heard a pin drop. Mr. Rushcroft evidently held his breath. There could be no mistake about that.

"It's rather delicate, but would you mind telling me just how much you were stuck up for by the—er—was it a writ of attachment?"

"It was," said the star. "A writ of inquisition, you might as well substitute. The act of a pollated, impecunious, parsimonious—what shall I say? Well, I will be as simple as possible—hotel keeper. Ninety-seven dollars and forty cents. For that pitiful amount he subjected me to—"

"Well, that isn't so bad," said Barnes, vastly relieved. He was covertly watching Miss Thackeray's half-averted face as he ventured upon the proposition he had decided to put before them. "I am prepared and willing to advance this amount, Mr. Rushcroft, and to take your personal note as security."

Rushcroft leaned back in his chair and stuck his thumbs in the armholes of his vest. He displayed no undue elation. Instead he affected profound calculations. His daughter shot a swift, searching look at the would-be Samaritan. There was a heightened color in her cheeks.

"Moreover, I shall be happy to increase the amount of the loan sufficiently to cover your return at once to New York, if you so desire—by train." Barnes smiled as he added the last two words.

"Extremely kind of you, my dear Barnes," said the actor, running his fingers through his hair. "Your faith in me is most gratifying. I—I really don't know what to say to you, sir."

"May I inquire just how you expect to profit by this transaction, Mr. Barnes?" Miss Thackeray asked steadily.

He started, catching her meaning.

"My dear Miss Thackeray," he exclaimed, "this transaction is solely between your father and me. I shall have no other claim to press."

"I wish I could believe that," she said.

"You may believe it," he assured her.

"It isn't the usual course," she said quietly, and her face brightened. "You are not like most men, Mr. Barnes."

"My dear child," said Rushcroft, "you must leave this matter to our friend and me. I fancy I know an honest man when I see him. My dear fellow, fortune is but temporarily frowning upon me. In a few weeks I shall be on my feet again, zipping along on the crest of the wave. I dare say I can return the money to you in a month or six weeks. If—"

"Oh, father!" cried Miss Thackeray.

"We'll make it six months, and I'll pay any rate of interest you desire. Six per cent, eight per cent, ten per—"

"Six per cent, sir, and we will make it a year from date."

"Agreed. Get up and dance for us, Dilly! We shall be in New York tomorrow!"

"You forget the dictatorial sheriff, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes.

"The varlet!" barked Mr. Rushcroft.

It was arranged that Dillingford and Bacon were to go to Hornville in a hired motor that afternoon, secure the judgment, pay the costs, and attend to the removal of the personal belongings of the stranded quartette from the hotel to Hart's Tavern. The younger actors stoutly refused to accept Barnes' offer to pay their board while at the Tavern. That, they declared, would be charity, and they preferred his friendship and his respect to anything of that sort. Miss Thackeray, however, was to be immediately relieved of her position as chambermaid. She was to become a paying guest.

Rushcroft took the whole affair with the most noteworthy complacency. He seemed to regard it as his due, or more properly speaking as if he were doing Barnes a great favor in allowing him to lend money to a person of his importance.

"A thought has just come to me, my dear fellow," he remarked as they arose from table. "With the proper kind of backing I could put over one of the most stupendous things the theater has known in fifty years. I don't mind saying to you—although it's rather sub rosa—that I have written a play—a four-act drama that will pack the biggest house on Broadway to the roof for as many months as we'd care to stay. Perhaps you will allow me to talk it over with you a little later on. You will be interested, I'm sure. Egad, sir, I'll read the play to you. I'll—What ho, landlord. Have your best automobile sent around to the door as quickly as possible. A couple of my men are going to Hornville to fetch hither my—"

GREEN FANCY

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Author of "GRAUSTARK," "THE HOLLOW OF HER HAND," "THE PRINCE OF GRAUSTARK," ETC.

Copyright by Dodd, Mead and Company, Inc.

"Just a minute," interrupted Putnam Jones, wholly unimpressed. "A man just called you up on the phone, Mr. Barnes. I told him you was entertaining royalty at lunch and couldn't be disturbed. So he asked me to have you call him up as soon as you revived. His words, not mine. Call up Mr. O'Dowd at Green Fancy. Here's the number."

The mellow voice of the Irishman soon responded to Barnes' call.

"I called you up to relieve your mind regarding the young woman who came last night," he said. "You observe that I say 'came.' She's quite all right, safe and sound, and no cause for uneasiness. I thought you meant that she was coming here as a guest, and so I made the very natural mistake of saying she hadn't come at all, at all. The young woman in question is Mrs. Van Dyke's maid. But, bless me soul, how was I to know she was even in existence, much less expected by train or motor or Shanks' mare? Well, she's here, so there's the end of our mystery."

Barnes was slow in replying. He was doubting his own ears. It was not conceivable that an ordinary—or even an extraordinary—lady's maid could have possessed the exquisite voice and manner of his chance acquaintance of the day before, or the temerity to order that sour-faced chauffeur about as if— The chauffeur!

"But I thought you said that Mr. Curtis' chauffeur was moon-faced and—"

"He is, bedad," broke in Mr. O'Dowd, chuckling. "That's what deceived me entirely, and no wonder. It wasn't Peter at all, but the rapscallion washer who went after her. He was instructed to tell Peter to meet the four o'clock train, and the blockhead forgot to give the order. Bedad, what does he do but sneak out after her himself, scared out of his boots for fear of what he was to get from Peter. I had the whole story from Mrs. Van Dyke."

"Well, I'm tremendously relieved," said Barnes slowly.

"And so am I," said O'Dowd with conviction. "I have seen the heroine of our busted romance. She's a good-looking girl. I'm not surprised that she kept her veil down. If you were to leave it to me, though, I'd say that it's a sin to carry discretion so far as all that. You see what I mean, don't you?" His rich laugh came over the wire.

"Perfectly. Thank you for letting

me know. My mind is at rest. Good-by." As he hung up the receiver he said to himself, "You are a most affable, convincing chap, Mr. O'Dowd, but I don't believe a word you say. That woman is no lady's maid, and you've known all the time that she was there."

At four o'clock he set out alone for a tramp up the mountain road in which the two men had been shot down. His mind was quite clear. Roon and Paul were not ordinary robbers. They were, no doubt, honest men. He would have said that they were thieves bent on burglarizing Green Fancy were it not for the disclosures of Miss Thackerny and the very convincing proof that they were not shot by the same man.

It was not beyond reason—indeed, it was quite probable—that they were trying to cross the border; in that event their real operations would be confined to the Canadian side of the line. He could not free himself of the suspicion that Green Fancy possessed the key to the situation. Roon and his companion could not have had the slightest interest in his movements up to the instant he encountered the young woman at the crossroads. His busy brain suddenly suffered the shock of a distinct conclusion. Was she a fellow conspirator? Was she the inside worker at Green Fancy in a well-laid plan to rifle the place?

Could it be possible that she was the confederate of these painstaking agents who lurked with sinister patience outside the very gates of the place called Green Fancy?

His ramble carried him far beyond the spot where Roon's body was found and where young Conley had come upon the tethered horses. His eager, curious gaze swept the forest to the left of the road in search of Green Fancy. Overcome by a rash, daring impulse, he climbed over the stake and rider fence and sauntered among the big trees which so far had obscured the house from view. The trees grew very thickly on the slope, and they were unusually large. He progressed deeper into the wood. At the end of what must have been a mile he halted. There was no sign of habitation, no indication that man had ever penetrated so far into the forest. As he was on the point of retracing his steps toward the road his gaze fell upon a huge moss-covered rock less than a hundred yards away. He stared, and gradually it began to take on angles and planes and recesses of the most astounding symmetry. Under his widening gaze it was transformed into a substantial object of cubes and gables and—yes, windows.

He was looking upon the strange home of the even stranger Mr. Curtis—Green Fancy.

Now he understood why it was called Green Fancy. Its surroundings were no greener than itself; it seemed to melt into the foliage, to become a part of the natural landscape. Mountain ivy literally enveloped it. Exposed sections of the house were painted green; the doors were green; the leafy porches and their columns, the chimney pots, the window hangings—all were the color of the unchanging forest. And it was a place of huge dimensions, low and long and rambling.

"'Gad," he said to himself, "what manner of crank is he who would bury himself like this? Of all the crazy ideas I ever—"

His reflections ended there. A woman crossed his vision; a woman strolling slowly toward him through the intricate avenues of the wildwood.

John McKee, he comes to see My sister Nell quite frequently. And then these two begin to brew Some Golden Sun—immediately.

Real Household Economy

SAY to yourself just this:—"I've been reading a lot about 'Purity' Margarine and I'm going to try a pound just to see what it's like, anyway. They say it is so much like butter that you can't tell the difference, and if it is, I surely want to know it. Everything else is so high these days that it certainly would help to save about one-third of what I ordinarily pay for butter. Especially since 'Purity' tastes so much like butter that hardly one person in a hundred can tell the difference."

What Fordson Service Will Do For You

There are two big factors to consider when you are buying a tractor—both equally important—the tractor itself and the service rendered.

A tractor which is standing idle because the service station is far away or because the dealer hasn't the proper parts is a poor investment, no matter how well the tractor itself may be made.

Fordson Tractors are selling by the thousands every month and are giving universal satisfaction all over the world because of this:

The tractor itself is made as durable, dependable, efficient and economical as the best engineering skill, the finest materials and workmanship can make it.

And added to this wherever a Fordson Tractor is sold, you will find parts and service as quickly and easily available as the kerosene you put into the tank.

Our service means this to you. First that we will thoroughly instruct you how to get the most out of your tractor—how to operate it properly so as to avoid trouble—how to make all minor repairs and adjustments so that only on rare occasions will you have to call for help.

Then when you do require help for repair work or parts you will find us ready at a moment's notice.

Our stock of parts is complete, our mechanics are experts.

Fordson service is delivered to your farm.

To own a Fordson means that you own a durable, dependable, economical tractor that will serve you every working day in the year.

The Fordson company make it durable and dependable.

We keep it so.

ONE FELLOW WHO KNOWS HOW TO HOOK 'EM UP

(By United Press)

London, March 15, (By Mail)—Girls, meet the world's best "lady's maid."

He is Richard Marney, who for 25 years has "dressed" prima donnas, musical comedy actresses and when he has had tie time, even assisted mere men stage folk. who have "played" Drury Lane Theatre.

But Marney makes an exception. He leaves chorus girls strictly to maids of their own sex.

Marney learned Italian from Caruso The great tenor taught him in self defense. Marney, supposed to give Caruso five drops of a strong tonic, gave him fifty instead. Marney says Caruso was a "howling success" that night, but the tenor took no more chances. So Marney had to learn the Italian language

Among those who have declared Marney an excellent "dresser" are Gaby Deslys, and Destinn, the great prima donna, Caruso, Harry Pilcer, Dan Leno and Alfred Lester have testified to Marney's "dressing" ability.

Marney was discovered by Destinn When one of her maids became ill, Marney was called in to 'pinch hit.' He proved so deft at "hooking her up the back," that Destinn presented him with a photo of herself signed, "the only woman you ever dressed.'

When Gaby Deslys' lightning changes created a maid-panic, Marney came to the rescue. Thereafter while Gaby was at Drury Lane, he showed himself fully equal to the occasion of dressing her during a performance wherein she had eleven complete changes of dress and head-dress in two and a half minutes. During the same performance, Marney assisted Harry Pilcer through eight changes, complete from collar to shoes

Marney is no mean dresser himself. He is a six footer, broad across the shoulders and is the Beau Brunnel of Picadilly .

ANCIENT HISTORY REHASH

It beats the band how the average man's memory plays horse with him. In a congenial party of local men last evening durinng a reminiscent period a dispute arose as to the date of the burning of the Novelty Works in the Fourth Ward and the blowing up of the boilers at the Steam Plant.

As is natural when a fellow wants the latest news on the correct date of any ancient happening The Progress was appealed to for the purpose of determining who was right.

Our research discloses that the Novelty Works were burned May 5, 1906. Andrew Carlson, father of Officer C. E Carlson, the night watch man at the plant lost his life in this fire.

The boiler explosion at the steam plant occurred at 8:15 a. m. Sunday, Nov. 25, 1906 and the engineer in charge. John Byers lost his life as a result of the blow up.

A FAREWELL PARTY

A Farewell party was held at the home of Mr and Mrs. Burton Davis, near West Decatur on Saturday evening for their son Willis, and Ray Goss, son of Harry Goss, who left Monday morning for Kingman, Kansas. Over a hundred were present.

Playing games and music were the pastimes of the evening, after which delightful refreshments were served, and their many friends wished them good luck

I recommend Tanlac because it has helped me in all my trouble and has removed the pain with which I suffered."

NEW MEADOWS SUFFERED

It is reported by farmers in this section that the open winter just drawing to a close has been ruinous to some of the new seeded meadows. While there has been no extremely cold weather there has been practically no snow to cover the meadows and with the thawing and freezing, the newly seeded meadows have become sort of honeycombed with the result that the roots of the clover have been chilled and blasted. It is said that some fields of winter wheat have also been affected in the same way. The older meadows and pasture lands do not seem to have been materially affected.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

Last Saturday evening Rev. Hawkins received a surprise at the hands of his Mahaffey congregation. He has charge of the churches both here and Mahaffey. Last Sunday was his day to preach to his up river congregation. His surprise was in the form of a new clerical suit of clothes presented to him by the members of his congregation. He surely appreciated the gift and was highly pleased when it was handed to him .

Mr. Paul Robinson came home from Washington the other day in order to spend a few days with his mother Mrs. T. J. Robinson. He looks as though the climate along the Potomac agreed with him

It was rumored in business circles yesterday that Mr. W. J. Laye, who has been manager of the Bickford store comany for a year past, had resigned and would soon remove from Curwensville. Investigation by the Progress representative leads one to believe that the rumor has some foundation.

Mr. W. M. Buck wishes us to make a correction in regard to the statement of the fire which we stated was at the home of Dewey Hummel last Saturday evening. The fire was at the home of Mr. Buck, where the Hummels make their home. The loss was mainly that of Mr . Buck and amounted to $144 instead of $200 as as stated. We make this correction in justice to Mr. Buck.

Rev Max Lantz and family took their departure for their new home at Mt. Union yesterday. A large crowd of admiring friends were at the train to see them off and wish them God speed on their journey.

Street Commissioner Dale, with a crew of men, flushed the paved streets yesterday. He did a good job of it and the streets present a different appearance from what they did a few days ago.

The question of a new water plant has subsided since the Raftsman Water company has back-knuckled on their new rate and announced that the old rate would remain in force. The present rate is plenty high enough as it is, and the citizens of Curwensville were not going to stand for a raise which the company stated would be added to take effect on January 1st

The members of Bethesda Lodge 821 I. O. O. F. are arranging to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the foundation of the order in America The event will take place on Friday evening, Aril 25th. An excellent program will be prepared and presented which consist of addresses, music, etc

The raising of chiefs will take place in the lodge of Red Men next Wednesday evening. The district grand chief from Philipsburg will be present on this occasion. The elective officers are: Ji E. Daub, sachem; W. L. Holden, senior sagamore; Harvey M Smith, junior Sagamore; Harold V. Smith, prophet; Peter O'Laughlin, collector of wampum; John A Dale, chief of records; J. G Fullerton, keeper of wampum; representative to great council, Floyd Barger

Mrs. W K. Wrigley was a Clearfield visitor yesterday, visiting a relative from Tyrone who is taking treatment in the Clearfield hospital.

Mrs. D. W. Hauck, Messrs Lewis and Westley Hauck and Miss Frances Hauck, who reside near Luthersburg, were Curwensville visitors yesterday

More than one thousand societies of women in Great Britain are arranging for celebrations to be held next month in honor of the Queen Victoria centenary.

HOUSE TAKES PRESIDENT'S CHAIR AT FORMAL MEETING OF THE "BIG FOUR" THIS AFTERNOON

PEACE WITH HUNS FIRST URGED

By Carl D. Groat

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, April 4—The "big four" met this afternoon with Col. House representing President Wilson, who is suffering from a severe cold necessitating his temporary absence from the conference, and King Albert of Belgium, who conferred yesterday with President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau and President Poincaire who were invited to the meeting.

It was expected that Belgium's claim to participate in the matter of reparation would be given official consideration and that Belgium's territorial questions would be considered simultaneously with the work of Germany's western and eastern boundaries.

Some of President Wilson's advisors are urging him to return to the original plan for making peace with Germany firstand signing the treaties with Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey later. He is being told that this may facilitate the peace work greatly. While the American group has held that a joint peace settlement would delay the final result they suggested today that peace with Germany be settled at once in an effort to restore normal conditions in Europe. How Wilson feels regarding the suggestion is not known.

Quezon speaking for the mission said "the granting of independence to our country will prove to the world that America is a liberating rather than a conquering nation."

"The time for the Filipinos' independence has essentially come" Secretary of War Baker told the Philippine mission here today.

This action followed the decision of the Dauphin county court in the telephone injunction case against the Bell Telephone company in which the increase in rates ordered by Postmaster General Burleson was declared in violation of the Pennsylvania Public Service laws.

MEANEST CHEATER WATERED HIS COAL

We were informed by a reputable citizen this morning that the "cheapest crook" imaginable lives in Clearfield and that he is selling or hauling custom coal. This fellow who resembles a man somewhat—in outward appearance only—was seen yesterday morning at the public watering trough at the Second street bridge taking water from the horse trough by the bucket full and dousing onto the coal in the wagon preparatory to having the same weighed at Fullington's scales just off Bridge street.

No doubt the soaked coal was intended for some poor widow woman at that.

The sonofagun had a two and one half gallon bucket and loaded up about 75 cents worth of water before sneaking away from the trough.

Talk about the Bolsheviki. Wouldn't that grab you? What?

We'll bet a cent watering troughs will be mighty scarce where that fellow goes when he quits hauling coal here and goes to wheeling out ashes there.

JOHN MARTIN WESLEY

John Martin Wesley, a well known and highly respected resident of Kylertown, died at his home in that place on Saturday, March 29, 1919, the result of Bright's disease, with which he had been ailing for some time.

The deceased, whose age was 64 years, was a native of Bellwood. When a young man he came with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Wesley, now deceased, to this vicinity, and along with his father worked as an engineer at the old Weiser & Bender sawmill near Graham station, where the parents resided. Late he was an engineer for the late D. W. Holt at the old Lock Lohmond sawmill, and in recent years has been an engineer at the mines near Allport, and making his home at Kylertown. He was a member of the church, and also of the lodges of Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias. A courteous gentleman, and an industrious and upright citizen, his death will be mourned by a large number of friends.

Besides his wife, who was formerly Miss Gertrude Albert, born and raised in this vicinity, he leaves two sons and two daughters, viz: David, of Clearfield; Ed. of Barnesboro; Carrie, wife of Harry Reece, of Kylertown, and Mrs. Gertrude Hooven, of Altoona. Four brothers and one sister also survive, viz: L. Wesley, of Johnsonburg; Frank, of Harrisburg; Jesse and Orin, of Tyrone, and Mrs. John Lafey, of Hawk Run.

His funeral took place on Wednesday, April 2, with interment in the Kylertown cemetery.

WAS INSURED IN ARCANUM

The late Postmaster J. C. Barclay was a member of the Royal Arcanum and carried a life insurance policy for $1,000 in that organization.

HELPERS NEEDED BADLY AT RED CROSS ROOMS

The Red Cross campaign for used clothing to be sent to the deserving poor of Europe is meeting with a hearty response at the hands of citizens of this community and in every district within the jurisdiction of the Clearfield chapter. Tons of it has begun to arrive at Red Cross headquarters and they have asked The Progress to announce that helpers are needed to sort and bundle the clothing. This is not a case where you can take a vacation before starting to work as the clothing is already at the rooms waiting to be attended to and the helpers are wanted at SEVEN O'CLOCK THIS VERY EVENING. Helpers are also needed for tomorrow. Be on the job at seven o'clock tonight and lend a hand to the force who are already working on this laudable undertaking.

AMERICA'S IMMORTALS

JACKSON D. BURKE,
Sergeant-Major, 1st Battalion, 28th Infantry.

Sergt.-Maj. Burke was decorated for the display of exceptional courage, bravery and loyalty to duty at Cantigny, France, May 28 to 29. At one period in the fight, it was necessary to send a message of great importance to the regimental commander. It was considered impossible for a runner to reach regimental headquarters, because of the heavy fire of the enemy line. He undertook the mission, succeeded in carrying the message and by crawling several hundred yards through machine gun fire he successfully executed his mission. Sergt.-Maj. Burke's home is at Madisonville, Ky.

CANNING THE CAN'T IDEA

Vicory Liberty Loan workers all over the nation are busily engaged in killing the "can't" idea which is permeating the minds of so many people at this time. Judging from the activity around Loan headquarters they are going to accomplish all that they set out to do.

The Victory Liberty Loan office for the district composed of Clearfield county and Philipsburg has been open this week and is already one of the busiest places in Clearfield if not the whole county. A tremendous organization is being formed which will make a thorough campaign in every nook and corner of the district. To enumerate all the activities of the different officials and chairmen and committeemen would require a whole page in itself. These activities will be published more fully from now on. Up to this time it has been largely a matter of organization and the real work will begin next week. Watch this column for news of the big loan campaign.

Every minister and priest in the district has been supplied with a copy of a bulletin to be read in the churches on Sunday. It is hoped that all ministers will co-operate and that churchgoers will carefully heed the message.

"MICKEY" GLADDENS HEARTS OF MOVIE THEATRE PATRONS

Packed houses greeted the two showings of "Mickey" the world famous photoplay at The Driggs theatre last evening. "Mickey" proved to be one of the rip-roaringest, hair-raising film showing ever staged in these parts.

Pretty little Mabel Normandy as "Mickey" is sure some cutie. H. C Witwer, the brilliant and witty author of the play certainly mapped out some thrilling situations, but the vivacious and versatile "Mickey" never batted an eye and went through the scale from ludicrity to pathos and from tomboy westerner to the demure city debutante with a sangfroid and abandon that fairly took ones breath away. You can talk till you are out of breath trying to describe that horse raced and slide for life off the roof, with the other half hundred hairbreadth escapes of the pretty little heroine but you can't even begin to do play or star justice "Mickey" is in a class by itself and herself and must be seen by all who love thrill and adventure with a happy finale to be really appreciated.

You can see it at The Driggs theatre today and tomorrow. Matinee Saturday.

A. E. F. HAS BIGGEST UNIVERSITY IN ALL THE WORLD

(By United Press.)

Beaume, March 20. (By Mail.)—What's expected to be the largest educational institution in the world, or at least to have the largest student body, has opened here and the first rush of the anticipated ten thousand students has begun. The buildings are practically all ready. The Army Educational Commission, which will control the school, operating it as a military post, is settled in its headquarters. The commanding officer, Col. Ira L. Reeves, former professor of military science at Purdue University, has been at Beaume six weeks supervising preparations. Dr. John Erskine, professor of English at Columbia, is educational director or president of the faculty.

In the faculty are President Kenyon L. Butterfield of Massachusetts Agricultural College, directing the department of agriculture; Dr. Louis L. Reber, dean of the University of Wisconsin, directing the engineering department and Dr. F. E. Spaulding, superintendent of schools at Cleveland, in an advisory capacity.

There are fourteen colleges. When in full operation the university, together with the agricultural college nine miles distant, will accommodate nearly 40,000 men, housed in one thousand buildings. The buildings are semi-permanent structures of brick and concrete, 600 of them dormitories and mess halls and the remainder class rooms laboratories lecture rooms, recreation and entertainment halls. Athletic fields are being built.

A building to accommodate nearly a half million books, furnished by the American Library Association, will be the library. It will surpass many a library in American universities and is intended to cover every subject.

For enrollment, high school or equivalent education is required. The university is opened to all members of the A. E. F., officers and privates alike. There is no cost for tuition, text books, transportation, or housing and students will draw their regular pay while in school. If a student's organization is ordered home while he is at school he may remain in school if he desires, so long as the A. E. F. continues to operate.

PLAN HIGHWAY IN HONOR OF PERSHING

By United Press

Lincoln, Neb., April 3—"Pershing highway" a national road in honor of General J. J. Pershing, is being organized by the Lincoln Commercial club. Present plans contemplate making the road start at New York, touching Princeton, N. J., Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Indianapolis en route west. This would include many historic points connected with the civil war and would take in Springfield, Ohio., Lincoln's birthplace.

A permanent organization of the project has been completed here with Governor S. R. McKelvie, Nebraska, as honorary chairman, and Chancellor Samuel Avery, of the University of Nebraska, temporary president. Governor McKelvie has announced his intention of inviting governors of the various states through which the highways will pass to sent representatives to Lincoln in the near future to effect a national organization.

As planned, the trans-continental road will touch the state capitals of California, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Nebraska, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. The Pershing route would follow the Lincoln Highway in part, branching off at points to include scenes of the president's life.

FISHING SEASON PROMISES TO BE BEST IN YEARS

Normal Temperatures And Lack Of Snow Taken As Sign That Trout Will Be Plentiful

MANY DIGGING BAIT ALREADY

A question that is often heard on the streets at this time is 'What is the outlook for the trout fishing season this year?" Many of the local anglers are asking this question, and the answers naturally appear to differ. It is a difficult question to answer in several respects owing to existing conditions. The weather is the one of the largest factors, and presence of plenty of fish in the streams is another. Should the weather prove favorable during the first few days of the season, which opens Tuesday, April 15, and the streams are not too high and do not contain snow water there is but little doubt but that the anglers will be successful on the various streams in this locality.

The mild weather of the past winter helped materially in saving the lives of many trout which would have died had the streams been ice-bound. The trout streams were open practically all winter, and this fact will go far toward making a successful season this year, inasmuch as there should be an abundance of trout in the streams.

However, just what might occur between now and the opening of the season is not known. Take last year for instance. Most sportsmen predicted a good season for the catching of the speckled beauties and in fact everything pointed that way. But the opening day proved a sore disappointment to many who tried their luck owing to the heavy fall of snow a few days before. Some anglers trudged thru the snow all day and were rewarded with hardly enough to "make a mess" of.

Then again, the presence of snow water in the streams means poor sport. The fish are very sluggish and there is but little sport, as the best it appears to be is termer "sucker fishing." Whereas, with the streams in the proper condition and warm weather, the speckled beauties are full of life but ready and put up a game fight. Therefore, it is difficult to conjecture just what is in store for the lovers of the rod. Even with a good opening, it does not necessarily mean a good season, for throughout last summer, the fishing was exceedingly poor, owing to cool weather.

Nevertheless, no matter what the first two weeks of the season may be, it is safe to assert that with the arrival of warm weather, the sport should be the best that has been experienced in this community for many years. With plenty of fish in the streams and good weather, it can hardly be otherwise.

The usual custom of nearl all trout anglers is to use worms, minnows, lawyers, etc, to tempt the wily fish during the first few days of the season, and already some of the local fishermen who expect to put in the first day of the season, can be seen digging up their back yards for a bountiful supply of wrigglers. They are killing two birds with one stone—getting worms and digging up the garden for their spring planting. However, there are those who, should the air be warm, will use artificial flies to tempt the fish, even on the open day. This sounds incredulous, because there is such a small amount of insect life at that time, but nevertheless it is a proven fact. A fly that will usually do the trick to a nicety is one containing some bright red feathers, provided that there is no snow water in the streams.

BUSINESS HIT AGAIN

For the ordinary business that the people are transacting these days they are being taxed very heavily and the cost is slowly mounting, epecially wherever the government has a say in the matter. The public is paying more for freight and passenger service; more for wheat; more for telephone and telegraph charges. Meanwhile the government property, such as ships which were built a great expense are being sold for less than cost. The public will pay the difference—or has already paid it.

A crowning imposition upon the public has just been perpetrated by Political master Burleson in regard to telegraphic tolls under the guise of a war move, months after the armistice has been signed. The Postmaster General a few months ago took over the telephone and telegraph lines. Wages of the two lines have been advanced about 15 per cent. while the rates were boosted about 10 per cent. on an average. And the peculiar part of the rate boosting is the fact that it was made over the protest of one of the big telephone companies. Against their will the Postmaster General is compelling the companies to charge more for their service. C. H. Mackey, of the Postal company claims that if Burleson will return the lines to the company, it will be able to make good earnings at the old rate. This would seem to be confirmed by the statement that in the last six months the profits of the company was about $1,800,000, good evidence that an increase was not necessary in the rates if the business were efficiently handled. The increase made on April 1 means that the public will have to pay approximately $16,000,000 more for sending telegrams. About the only reason visible for the increase is the fact that it is desired to create jobs for political workers. (DuBois Courier)

MRS. R. M. TEST DIES

Mrs. Jane Lloyd Test, relict of the late Roland M. Test, of Philipsburg, died at the home of her daughter Mrs. F. B. Lee, on Fourth street, about 7 o'clock Thursday evening, April 3d. in the 75th year of her age. She had been suffering with a heavy cold for a few days and on Tuesday evening pneumonia developerd and on account of her advanced years her case was considered hopeless from the onset of the disease.

The deceased was born in Birmingham, Pa., in 1849, and lived in Philipsburg for many years. She was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian church and a sincere christian woman who was known and highly respected by a wide circle of friends. Her husband preceded her to the better world just six years ago yesterday. Since that time Mrs. Test had been making her home with her daughters.

She leaves to mourn the loss of a loving, devoted mother three daughters, viz: Mrs. F. B. Lee, Clearfield; Mrs. Lowman, wife of Dr. J. B. Lowman, of Johnstown and Mrs. Helen Hauffman, of Waterloo, Iowa.

Interment will be made at Philipsburg. Brief funeral services will be held at the Lee home Saturday evening, the remains taken to Philipsburg Sunday morning.

GREEN FANCY

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Thomas K. Barnes, wealthy New Yorker, on a walking trip through New England, is caught in a storm miles from his destination. At a crossroads point he meets a girl in the same plight. While they discuss the situation an automobile, sent to meet the girl, arrives and Barnes is given a lift to Hart's tavern, while the girl is taken on to her destination, which she tells Barnes is a place called Green Fancy.

CHAPTER II—At the tavern Barnes falls in with a stranded troupe of "barnstorming" actors, headed by Lyndon Rushcroft, and becomes interested in them.

CHAPTER III—As the storm grows, Barnes finds himself worrying over the safety of the girl, traveling over the mountain roads at what he considers dangerous speed. He learns that Green Fancy is something of a house of mystery. Two mounted men leave the tavern in a manner which arouses Barnes' curiosity.

CHAPTER IV—He meets "Miss Thackeray," leading lady of the stranded theatrical troupe, who is acting as chambermaid. That night he is aroused by the bringing of a dying man to the tavern, one of the two who had ridden away a short time before. They tell of finding the dead body of the other man. Both had been shot.

CHAPTER V—The wounded man, registered at the tavern as Andrew Paul, dies, and Barnes is informed he must not leave until after the inquest. O'Dowd and De Soto, guests at Green Fancy, visit the tavern, apparently much mystified over the affair.

CHAPTER VI.

Charity Begins Far From Home, and a Stroll in the Wildwood Follows.

Mr. Rushcroft was furious when he arose at eleven o'clock on the morning after the double murder, having slept like a top through all of the commotion. He boomed all over the place, vocal castigations falling right and left on the guilty and the innocent without distinction.

"I don't see how you managed to sleep through it," Barnes broke in. "You must have an unusually clear conscience, Mr. Rushcroft."

"I haven't any conscience at all, sir," roared the star. "I had an unusually full stomach, that's what was the matter with me. I take oath now, sir, never to eat again as long as I live. A man who cannot govern his beastly appetite ought to defy it, if nothing else."

"I gather from that remark that you omitted breakfast this morning."

"Breakfast, sir? In God's name, I implore you not to refer to anything so disgusting as stewed prunes and bacon at a time like this. My mind is—"

"How about luncheon? Will you join me at twelve-thirty?"

"That's quite another matter," said Mr. Rushcroft readily. "Luncheon is an esthetic tribute to the physical intelligence of man, if you know what I mean. I shall be delighted to join you. "Twelve-thirty, did you say?"

"It would give me great pleasure if your daughter would also grace the festal board. I think it is too bad that she has to go about in the gown she wears, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes. "She's much too splendid for that. I have a proposition I'd like to make to you later on. I cannot make it, however, without consulting Miss Thackeray's feelings."

"My dear fellow!" beamed Rushcroft, seizing the other's hand. "One frequently reads in books about it coming like this, at first sight, but, damme, I never dreamed that it ever really happened. Count on me! She ought to leave the stage, the dear child. No more fitted to it than an Easter lily. Her place is in the home, the—"

"Good Lord, I am not thinking of—" And Barnes, aghast, stopped before blurting out the words that leaped to his lips. "I mean to say this is a proposition that may also affect your excellent companions, Bacon and Dillingford, as well as yourself."

At twelve-thirty sharp Barnes came down from his room freshly shaved and brushed, to find not only Mr. Rushcroft and Miss Thackeray awaiting him in the office, but the Messrs. Dillingford and Bacon as well.

"I took the liberty, old fellow," said Rushcroft, addressing Barnes, "of asking my excellent co-workers to join us in our repast."

"Delighted to have you with us, gentlemen," said Barnes affably.

The sole topic of conversation for the first half hour was the mysterious slaying of their fellow lodgers. Mr. Rushcroft complained bitterly of the outrageous, high-handed action of the coroner and sheriff in imposing upon him and his company the same restrictions that had been applied to Barnes. They were not to leave the county until the authorities gave the word. One would have thought, to hear the star's indignant lamentations, that he and his party were in a position to depart when they pleased. It would have been difficult to imagine that he was not actually rolling in money instead of being absolutely penniless.

Barnes had been immersed in his own thoughts for some time. A slight frown, as of reflection, darkened his eyes. Suddenly—perhaps impolitely—he interrupted Mr. Rushcroft's flow of eloquence.

"Have you any objection, Mr. Rushcroft, to a more or less personal question concerning your own private—er—misfortunes?" he asked, leaning forward.

For a moment one could have heard a pin drop. Mr. Rushcroft evidently held his breath. There could be no mistake about that.

"It's rather delicate, but would you mind telling me just how much you were stuck up for by the—er—was it a writ of attachment?"

"It was," said the star. "A writ of inquisition, you might as well substitute. The act of a pollated, impecunious, parsimonious—what shall I say? Well, I will be as simple as possible—hotel keeper. Ninety-seven dollars and forty cents. For that pitiful amount he subjected me to—"

"Well, that isn't so bad," said Barnes, vastly relieved. He was covertly watching Miss Thackeray's half-averted face as he ventured upon the proposition he had decided to put before them. "I am prepared and willing to advance this amount, Mr. Rushcroft, and to take your personal note as security."

Rushcroft leaned back in his chair and stuck his thumbs in the armholes of his vest. He displayed no undue elation. Instead he affected profound calculations. His daughter shot a swift, searching look at the would-be Samaritan. There was a heightened color in her cheeks.

"Moreover, I shall be happy to increase the amount of the loan sufficiently to cover your return at once to New York, if you so desire—by train." Barnes smiled as he added the last two words.

"Extremely kind of you, my dear Barnes," said the actor, running his fingers through his hair. "Your faith in me is most gratifying. I—I really don't know what to say to you, sir."

"May I inquire just how you expect to profit by this transaction, Mr. Barnes?" Miss Thackeray asked steadily.

He started, catching her meaning.

"My dear Miss Thackeray," he exclaimed, "this transaction is solely between your father and me. I shall have no other claim to press."

"I wish I could believe that," she said.

"You may believe it," he assured her.

"It isn't the usual course," she said quietly, and her face brightened. "You are not like most men, Mr. Barnes."

"My dear child," said Rushcroft, "you must leave this matter to our friend and me. I fancy I know an honest man when I see him. My dear fellow, fortune is but temporarily frowning upon me. In a few weeks I shall be on my feet again, zipping along on the crest of the wave. I dare say I can return the money to you in a month or six weeks. If—"

"Oh, father!" cried Miss Thackeray.

"We'll make it six months, and I'll pay any rate of interest you desire. Six per cent, eight per cent, ten per—"

"Six per cent, sir, and we will make it a year from date."

"Agreed. Get up and dance for us, Dilly! We shall be in New York tomorrow!"

"You forget the dictatorial sheriff, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes.

"The varlet!" barked Mr. Rushcroft.

It was arranged that Dillingford and Bacon were to go to Hornville in a hired motor that afternoon, secure the judgment, pay the costs, and attend to the removal of the personal belongings of the stranded quartette from the hotel to Hart's Tavern. The younger actors stoutly refused to accept Barnes' offer to pay their board while at the Tavern. That, they declared, would be charity, and they preferred his friendship and his respect to anything of that sort. Miss Thackeray, however, was to be immediately relieved of her position as chambermaid. She was to become a paying guest.

Rushcroft took the whole affair with the most noteworthy complacency. He seemed to regard it as his due, or more properly speaking as if he were doing Barnes a great favor in allowing him to lend money to a person of his importance.

"A thought has just come to me, my dear fellow," he remarked as they arose from table. "With the proper kind of backing I could put over one of the most stupendous things the theater has known in fifty years. I don't mind saying to you—although it's rather sub rosa—that I have written a play—a four-act drama that will pack the biggest house on Broadway to the roof for as many months as we'd care to stay. Perhaps you will allow me to talk it over with you a little later on. You will be interested, I'm sure. Egad, sir, I'll read the play to you. I'll—What ho, landlord. Have your best automobile sent around to the door as quickly as possible. A couple of my men are going to Hornville to fetch hither my—"

GREEN FANCY

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

"Just a minute," interrupted Putnam Jones, wholly unimpressed. "A man just called you up on the phone, Mr. Barnes. I told him you was entertaining royalty at lunch and couldn't be disturbed. So he asked me to have you call him up as soon as you revived. His words, not mine. Call up Mr. O'Dowd at Green Fancy. Here's the number."

The mellow voice of the Irishman soon responded to Barnes' call.

"I called you up to relieve your mind regarding the young woman who came last night," he said. "You observe that I say 'came.' She's quite all right, safe and sound, and no cause for uneasiness. I thought you meant that she was coming here as a guest, and so I made the very natural mistake of saying she hadn't come at all, at all. The young woman in question is Mrs. Van Dyke's maid. But, bless me soul, how was I to know she was even in existence, much less expected by train or motor or Shanks' mare? Well, she's here, so there's the end of our mystery."

Barnes was slow in replying. He was doubting his own ears. It was not conceivable that an ordinary—or even an extraordinary—lady's maid could have possessed the exquisite voice and manner of his chance acquaintance of the day before, or the temerity to order that sour-faced chauffeur about as if— The chauffeur!

"But I thought you said that Mr. Curtis' chauffeur was moon-faced and—"

"He is, bedad," broke in Mr. O'Dowd, chuckling. "That's what deceived me entirely, and no wonder. It wasn't Peter at all, but the rapscallion washer who went after her. He was instructed to tell Peter to meet the four o'clock train, and the blockhead forgot to give the order. Bedad, what does he do but sneak out after her himself, scared out of his boots for fear of what he was to get from Peter. I had the whole story from Mrs. Van Dyke."

"Well, I'm tremendously relieved," said Barnes slowly.

"And so am I," said O'Dowd with conviction. "I have seen the heroine of our busted romance. She's a good-looking girl. I'm not surprised that she kept her veil down. If you were to leave it to me, though, I'd say that it's a sin to carry discretion so far as all that. You see what I mean, don't you?" His rich laugh came over the wire.

"Perfectly. Thank you for letting

me know. My mind is at rest. Good-by." As he hung up the receiver he said to himself, "You are a most affable, convincing chap, Mr. O'Dowd, but I don't believe a word you say. That woman is no lady's maid, and you've known all the time that she was there."

At four o'clock he set out alone for a tramp up the mountain road in which the two men had been shot down. His mind was quite clear. Roon and Paul were not ordinary robbers. They were, no doubt, honest men. He would have said that they were thieves bent on burglarizing Green Fancy were it not for the disclosures of Miss Thackerny and the very convincing proof that they were not shot by the same man.

It was not beyond reason—indeed, it was quite probable—that they were trying to cross the border; in that event their real operations would be confined to the Canadian side of the line. He could not free himself of the suspicion that Green Fancy possessed the key to the situation. Roon and his companion could not have had the slightest interest in his movements up to the instant he encountered the young woman at the crossroads. His busy brain suddenly suffered the shock of a distinct conclusion. Was she a fellow conspirator? Was she the inside worker at Green Fancy in a well-laid plan to rifle the place?

Could it be possible that she was the confederate of these painstaking agents who lurked with sinister patience outside the very gates of the place called Green Fancy?

His ramble carried him far beyond the spot where Roon's body was found and where young Conley had come upon the tethered horses. His eager, curious gaze swept the forest to the left of the road in search of Green Fancy. Overcome by a rash, daring impulse, he climbed over the stake and rider fence and sauntered among the big trees which so far had obscured the house from view. The trees grew very thickly on the slope, and they were unusually large. He progressed deeper into the wood. At the end of what must have been a mile he halted. There was no sign of habitation, no indication that man had ever penetrated so far into the forest. As he was on the point of retracing his steps toward the road his gaze fell upon a huge moss-covered rock less than a hundred yards away. He stared, and gradually it began to take on angles and planes and recesses of the most astounding symmetry. Under his widening gaze it was transformed into a substantial object of cubes and gables and—yes, windows.

He was looking upon the strange home of the even stranger Mr. Curtis—Green Fancy.

Now he understood why it was called Green Fancy. Its surroundings were no greener than itself; it seemed to melt into the foliage, to become a part of the natural landscape. Mountain ivy literally enveloped it. Exposed sections of the house were painted green; the doors were green; the leafy porches and their columns, the chimney pots, the window hangings—all were the color of the unchanging forest. And it was a place of huge dimensions, low and long and rambling.

"'Gad," he said to himself, "what manner of crank is he who would bury himself like this? Of all the crazy ideas I ever—"

His reflections ended there. A woman crossed his vision; a woman strolling slowly toward him through the intricate avenues of the wildwood.

John McKee, he comes to see My sister Nell quite frequently. And then these two begin to brew Some Golden Sun—immediately.

Real Household Economy

SAY to yourself just this:—"I've been reading a lot about 'Purity' Margarine and I'm going to try a pound just to see what it's like, anyway. They say it is so much like butter that you can't tell the difference, and if it is, I surely want to know it. Everything else is so high these days that it certainly would help to save about one-third of what I ordinarily pay for butter. Especially since 'Purity' tastes so much like butter that hardly one person in a hundred can tell the difference."

What Fordson Service Will Do For You

There are two big factors to consider when you are buying a tractor—both equally important—the tractor itself and the service rendered.

A tractor which is standing idle because the service station is far away or because the dealer hasn't the proper parts is a poor investment, no matter how well the tractor itself may be made.

Fordson Tractors are selling by the thousands every month and are giving universal satisfaction all over the world because of this:

The tractor itself is made as durable, dependable, efficient and economical as the best engineering skill, the finest materials and workmanship can make it.

And added to this wherever a Fordson Tractor is sold, you will find parts and service as quickly and easily available as the kerosene you put into the tank.

Our service means this to you. First that we will thoroughly instruct you how to get the most out of your tractor—how to operate it properly so as to avoid trouble—how to make all minor repairs and adjustments so that only on rare occasions will you have to call for help.

Then when you do require help for repair work or parts you will find us ready at a moment's notice.

Our stock of parts is complete, our mechanics are experts.

Fordson service is delivered to your farm.

To own a Fordson means that you own a durable, dependable, economical tractor that will serve you every working day in the year.

The Fordson company make it durable and dependable.

We keep it so.

ONE FELLOW WHO KNOWS HOW TO HOOK 'EM UP

(By United Press)

London, March 15, (By Mail)—Girls, meet the world's best "lady's maid."

He is Richard Marney, who for 25 years has "dressed" prima donnas, musical comedy actresses and when he has had tie time, even assisted mere men stage folk. who have "played" Drury Lane Theatre.

But Marney makes an exception. He leaves chorus girls strictly to maids of their own sex.

Marney learned Italian from Caruso The great tenor taught him in self defense. Marney, supposed to give Caruso five drops of a strong tonic, gave him fifty instead. Marney says Caruso was a "howling success" that night, but the tenor took no more chances. So Marney had to learn the Italian language

Among those who have declared Marney an excellent "dresser" are Gaby Deslys, and Destinn, the great prima donna, Caruso, Harry Pilcer, Dan Leno and Alfred Lester have testified to Marney's "dressing" ability.

Marney was discovered by Destinn When one of her maids became ill, Marney was called in to 'pinch hit.' He proved so deft at "hooking her up the back," that Destinn presented him with a photo of herself signed, "the only woman you ever dressed.'

When Gaby Deslys' lightning changes created a maid-panic, Marney came to the rescue. Thereafter while Gaby was at Drury Lane, he showed himself fully equal to the occasion of dressing her during a performance wherein she had eleven complete changes of dress and head-dress in two and a half minutes. During the same performance, Marney assisted Harry Pilcer through eight changes, complete from collar to shoes

Marney is no mean dresser himself. He is a six footer, broad across the shoulders and is the Beau Brunnel of Picadilly .

ANCIENT HISTORY REHASH

It beats the band how the average man's memory plays horse with him. In a congenial party of local men last evening durinng a reminiscent period a dispute arose as to the date of the burning of the Novelty Works in the Fourth Ward and the blowing up of the boilers at the Steam Plant.

As is natural when a fellow wants the latest news on the correct date of any ancient happening The Progress was appealed to for the purpose of determining who was right.

Our research discloses that the Novelty Works were burned May 5, 1906. Andrew Carlson, father of Officer C. E Carlson, the night watch man at the plant lost his life in this fire.

The boiler explosion at the steam plant occurred at 8:15 a. m. Sunday, Nov. 25, 1906 and the engineer in charge. John Byers lost his life as a result of the blow up.

A FAREWELL PARTY

A Farewell party was held at the home of Mr and Mrs. Burton Davis, near West Decatur on Saturday evening for their son Willis, and Ray Goss, son of Harry Goss, who left Monday morning for Kingman, Kansas. Over a hundred were present.

Playing games and music were the pastimes of the evening, after which delightful refreshments were served, and their many friends wished them good luck

TRAINMAN'S WORK IS GREATLY EASED

Clark Utt, 2121 S. 67th St., Philadelphia, is enthusiastic over the manner in which his labor as a trainman has been made easier. "I suffered from stomach trouble," says Mr. Utt "and my hands and feet were swollen and red. Tanlac was recommended to me and it has regulated my stomach and has taken the swelling away. I recommend Tanlac because it has helped me in all my trouble and has removed the pain with which I suffered."

The genuine J. I. Gore Co. Tanlac is now sold here by Stewart Drug Co. and Woodward & McPherson.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep in the pink of condition. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

NEW MEADOWS SUFFERED

It is reported by farmers in this section that the open winter just drawing to a close has been ruinous to some of the new seeded meadows. While there has been no extremely cold weather there has been practically no snow to cover the meadows and with the thawing and freezing, the newly seeded meadows have become sort of honeycombed with the result that the roots of the clover have been chilled and blasted. It is said that some fields of winter wheat have also been affected in the same way. The older meadows and pasture lands do not seem to have been materially affected.
